

Von Roll achieves IATF certification at its production and R&D center for resins in Italy

Breitenbach, October 28, 2021 – With the IATF certification, Von Roll now also meets the most demanding quality standards of the automotive industry at its Italian production site in Trofarello. Together with its Chinese site in Shanghai, which is already qualified to automotive standards, Von Roll is very well positioned globally to meet the increasing market demand for resins and insulation products resulting from the boom in e-mobility.

To meet the highest requirements of the automotive industry, Von Roll recently extended its existing product range to include particularly sustainable and thermally conductive resins. These enable the production of extremely powerful and, at the same time, very compact drive motors and vehicle batteries.

Adrian Vid, Head of Global Quality Management, says: "The successful certification is another proof of our excellent product quality and high reliability as a global partner for the automotive industry."
